WeatherDress.me is an application aimed to give the users practical advices on what should be worn in different kinds of weather. The application shows clothing iconography alongside fashion consistent information on the current weather.

Users can follow the most important locations on the globe and get a personalized weekly weather report with the dynamic way of providing users the best suitable weather to wear on that specific day. The application provides useful content for professional travelers and tourists. It's a travel application for: - Photographers and videographers - Educators and travelers - Students and travelers

The WeatherDress.me mobile app uses next generation IPTC, GPS and WiFi data The application is completely free, users can browse the available content without any limitations. WeatherDress.me has an updated content of more than 200,000 pieces of apparel with the following fields: - Weather - Style - Material - Color - Size - Availability - Price - URL - Competitors - Description - Other information The application uses the next generation IPTC standard to send information back to the server where the information is stored in the database and is accessible through a web-based API. The API is also used to provide the dynamic suggestions based on the weather forecast, available products, user location and user profile.

WeatherDress.me uses open source libraries such as Yahoo Weather API and Maps API for weather prediction and dynamic location finding.

WeatherDress.me uses the popular open source AdMob library for monetization. The app is currently available on Android and iOS operating systems.

(Department of State) It is time for the U.S. government to lift its ban on Afghan women's involvement in business.

Afghan women are more educated than men.
They make up 46
percent of the labor force. They own 52 percent of land, and their children receive 25 percent of government spending. Yet, one of the largest barriers to women's economic empowerment is the continued ban on their involvement in business. This year, the U.S. government even cancelled plans to help fund a new program to help women develop their businesses. Last
