Adobe Creative Cloud revamp is changing the pricing plan. It's characterizing the basic plan as 'pay as you go' and the three other editions as 'pay as you grow'. The less you use, the cheaper it is. This lets you get started at no cost. If you get more serious about your digital needs, you can opt for a better deal from the Premium and Creative Cloud Elite editions, which offer three years of access for $9.99 a month. You can pay up to $399.99 a month for the Cloud Pro subscription. This is the most stable plan for those who need the most features and control of their digital images. The biggest single and most welcome omission from the new release of Photoshop and Lightroom as part of Adobe CS6 is the complete disappearance of the Creative Cloud. As originally expanded in 2007, Cloud computing allowed lightroom users and others to subscribe to a collection of applications, such as Photoshop and Lightroom, available to use on multiple PCs and Macs at a base cost of $30 per month. But Adobe's $399 annual price point and the lack of flexibility in the user's ability to use the product now on their home PC has left a lot of folks feeling like the service is not worth the expense. They can license an entire suite of creative tools, such as Photoshop and InDesign, for one flat rate. The software can be used on up to ten different computers or devices. But you have no way to have them be on your desktop computer and your iPad Pro, for example. To assist you in this set of new features, we're adding the Test Camera to the panel. It looks at your current document, analyzes the contents and provides your best recommendations for a neutral result, The camera only considers appearance factors when determining the best settings. In other words, it's not a replacement for traditional color tweaking.

Note: This can be slightly overwhelming because there are a few different Creative Cloud plans to pick from according to what your area of interest is. To make things simple there are 3 different options that you will have to choose from that include Photoshop. First the 'Photography' plan which is $9.99/mo and grants you access to Adobe Photoshop and also Adobe Lightroom which is a program that allows for detailed photo editing. This is a great value considering the second option is $20.99/mo for use of only Photoshop. The third and final option which I think is the best option is the Student and Teacher plan that is $19.99/mo and includes access to every Adobe program available. This is an amazing value because you get access to everything Adobe has to offer. From there you can learn and try new programs that Adobe offers to see what your favorite is. If you would like to save 60% on an Adobe Creative Cloud plan then you can click the link here to sign up. Once you finish with your editing then go to Save for Web & Devices. Then save for web and iOS devices. When you click to preview your GIF image it will ask you what device you would like the file to be saved to. Since I'd like to be on my CBM blog I want to save it to my phone which is a really easy process to do. When you go to preview it your cell phone will show a message like this: You can also watch the animation and see it on my blog as well. Here it is:
