Videos The Hulk is a 2016 American superhero film directed by Joss Whedon, based on the Marvel Comics character Hulk, produced by Marvel Studios and distributed by Walt Disney Pictures. It is the sequel to The Avengers (2012) and the fifteenth film in the Marvel Cinematic Universe. The film's plot follows the almost-certainly-evil Hank Pym, who gives the Hulk a containment unit in an attempt to reclaim his memory of Peter Parker, and at the same time, is also tasked with forming a team of heroes to stop the Hulk. The film was produced by Kevin Feige and Ryan F Grigson and features an ensemble cast that includes Mark Ruffalo as the Hulk, Thomas Kretschmann as Dr. Bruce Banner, Aaron Johnson as Scott Lang, Andy Bumatai as Quill, Scarlett Johansson as Natasha Romanoff, Viola Davis as the Black Widow, Elizabeth Olsen as Natasha Romanoff, Chris Hemsworth as Thor, Idris Elba as Heimdall, and Mark Ruffalo and Samuel L. Jackson as Bruce Banner and Nick Fury, respectively. The Hulk is the first film in the Marvel Cinematic Universe to feature a new brand identity, as well as the first to introduce the concept of a "movie trailer" for each character of the film, preceding a montage of previously-released character trailers from the film franchise. The film set an opening weekend box office record, making $191 million domestically and $407 million internationally. It received positive reviews and was lauded by critics and audiences alike, with
